FIABA is a cultural route for all, its aim is to promote a Global Accessibility and a Universal Usability through the removal of architectural, cultural, psychological and sensory barriers. For this reason, FIABA is not intended only for one part of the population but for everybody, because it faces the issues of our everyday life that needs an environment for all without any kind of discrimination. FIABA is carrying out a real change and a cultural renewal in the name of equal opportunities. Respect for the environment in which we live is also a duty towards the younger generations to whom we must deliver a world in which free movement and the normal use of spaces are goals already achieved. This is the reason why nowadays in all fields it must be clear that every new thing must be designed and constructed without barriers. There are millions of citizens who, because of their physical conditions (i.e. the elderly, the obese, the heart patients, and the people temporarily blocked in walking) are prisoners in their homes because there isn't any elevator or any elevator maintenance. Building the new and renovating the pre-existing in a barrier-free way, requires no additional funding, and it also means the strict observance of regulations. Italy holds the world record in terms of lifts (over 870,000) that everyday go/up and down at least a hundred million times. The 60% of the lifts in our Country have been working for more than 30 years, the 40% of them have been working for more than 30 years (source: ANIE/AssoAscensori), while five hundred thousand buildings still haven't got any.

Mission

This statement of fact brings us to a double disservice: it prevents some people from choosing these buildings as their own houses, and it prevents those who live in them to be called on by people with mobility problems. Informing and training people, involving also the Public Institutions so that they can contribute to carry out an environment accessible to all, is a democratic duty which no one must escape. FIABA's focus is directed to the various usable ages of everybody's life and to its needs, to promote respect for the specificities of everybody. FIABA project aims at implementing "a Space for all" or "a landscape for all" following the path of the ONU Convention on the Rights of People with disabilities with an emphasis on architectural, cultural, and psychological barriers, the last ones in particular, create barriers to equal opportunities and they are often carriers of discrimination. The principle of accessibility is invoked in Article 9 of the Convention which confirms the principle that people have a right to live independently and participate fully in all spheres of life and thus States are required to take all necessary measures to ensure accessibility to physical environment, transport, information and communications, including systems and technologies of information and communication and other facilities and services open to the public, both in urban and rural areas. Global Accessibility and Usability should become the very terms of any public and private work in planning. Besides the convenience, it is also important to raise the demand for all that is not only dressing, eating and going out, which are just basic necessities, but there is also the need of having fun, lire going to the stadium, to the theater, to the cinema. Or just travelling without any problem as every other tourist.

So Usability is to overcome indifference because it means the possibility of the actual easier and safer use of the environment for man's benefit, an environment that includes all spaces (both the closed and the open, ones) and the use of their equipment or services. That's why FIABA aims at breaking down the cultural and architectural barriers that preclude the possibility of enjoying and living the environment in all its forms and characteristics. For this reason, it promotes a universal accessibility and a design of the environments fully accessible according to the principles of the Universal Design to achieve a 100% comfort and a true Total Quality. FIABA message is heard by those who live universal accessibility and usability as a quality element for collectivity. We need to rethink, enrich and develop the relationship between the human being and the environment, as the qualitative and the quantitative characteristics of the environment, have an impact on people and on their participation in life. Moreover, the concept of accessibility changes over time and it tends to include people different from the usual standard of reference of the designers, so we must think of accessibility as an access to experience in life and we must also surpass the common meaning of “standard” in favor of a centrality of the human being. In FIABA opinion the Universal design is the most appropriate instrument to set a compilation of responses, it encapsulates all previous theoretical calculations (elimination of the architectural barriers, accessible design, classification of the disabilities, etc.), providing answers that are not restricted to the elimination of the barriers, but which aim at eliminating the discrimination of the design, and to provide a full social participation of all the members of society. Total Quality is, therefore, a model that has as its major objective to manage the quality by promoting a waste reduction with a view to the optimization of the efforts. Obviously, “to make quality” we need people with skills acquired in the field (without unnecessary theoretical approaches and specialized courses); people who have already got a documented experience that can support the effective dissemination of a global accessibility. The Total Quality Manager is a FIABA proposal addressed to all administrations. The task of a Total Quality Manager is to vouch for the quality perceived by people living in their city for tourism, work, and leisure, as the accessibility is a synthetic indicator of the quality that foreshadows a strategic vision and that identifies as its first goal an improvement of the quality! FIABA is present in Italy through a network of over 400 subscribers of the Memorandum of Understandings: the Presidency of the Council of Ministers, Ministries, Regions, Provinces, Municipalities, Cultural Institutes, Organizations, Associations, Universities, and Professional Associations. FIABA collaborates with all these partners to spread a global accessibility culture. The number of the agreements signed grows apace and it is available online on the website www.fiaba.org. FIABA participates in permanent conferences convened by several Local Governments (Prefectures) involved by the Ministry of the Interior following the signing of the MOU and is the protagonist of conferences, round tables, seminars, events and exhibitions throughout Italy. It is a member of the Observatory for Voluntary work, and of the Observatory for the associations of the Ministry for Social Policy, and it is also a member of the Commission for the Promotion of Accessible Tourism by the Ministry of Tourism. FIABA has promoted the constitution of FIDIA - Italian Federation of the Handicapped, linking the Italian associations taking care of people with disabilities and their families. The purpose of the Federation is to encourage the sharing of values for the same approach to diversity and to schedule the knowledge of history, culture and the principles of the Italian and European tradition in terms of universal accessibility and furthermore to promote the necessary legislative adjustments at all levels.

Giuseppe Trieste is FIABA chairman, who has devoted himself for over 40 years to promote a new culture emphasizing everybody's peculiarities as a resource for people and society, a preliminary to the recognition of equal opportunities in life.

TOURISM

Accessible tourism is an opportunity, synonymous with civilization. To be able to realize it can make our offer more and more competitive internationally. It is an important factor in economic development and employment, being a sector with greater potential margins of growth than others. The center of the tourism system is the person with all its needs. Caring for accessible tourism now, means giving concrete answers to millions of potential visitors to our country and encourage the incoming tourism of all those who have never had the opportunity of travelling to and through Italy. Thinking of an accessible tourist offer means to improve the quality and competitiveness of “Destination Italy”, and to customize the service starting by listening to every client’s needs to deliver high levels of accommodation for all.

TRANSPORTS

FIABA promotes the concept of sustainable mobility for all, supported by the European Commission's White Paper. It is important to reduce the incidental mortality on the roads and the inter-modality of transport. FIABA, thanks to its own experience in mobility for the disabled, is part of the Scientific Committee of the operating structure for the drafting of the Strategic Plan for Sustainable Mobility in the City of Rome, consisting of experts with a high professional profile. We all need a cultural change which must also cover the management and organization of the means of transportation. FIABA will thus focus on the output of public transport, private globalization and total accessibility. Trains must be at level to allow an easy access to all people. Urban and suburban transport must provide modern buses. It is possible, in a period from five to ten years, to provide such a replacement as to ensure a modern fleet of vehicles.

HOUSING

It is a design system for residences totally accessible, which is based on the principle of Housing Mobility. It wants to build relationships and pathways that not only break down the architectural barriers, but also the psychological ones, including all users.
